"MR. BARNES OF ARIZONA."

Gifted Booster Has Some Nice Things To Say for Nogales.

(By W. E. BARNES, in the Tucson Citizen)

Prosperity perches upon the banner of Nogales. Although handicapped by the unfortunate conditions prevailing in Mexico, the "Line City" is prospering; it has manfully shaken off all retarding influences, and is advancing rapidly upon the broad highway of progress, the city is spreading out, marked improvement can be seen upon every hand, new buildings going up in all directions, beautiful homes, stores, industrial plants, and public buildings.

No city boasts of a group of more public spirited, and able business men than the city of Nogales, all working together for the general good. Under the able administration of Captain L. W. Mix, who is now serving his second term as mayor, the growth of the city has been most marked, its wealth and importance greatly augmented. Among the more important achievements of the Mix administration are an adequate sewer system, waterworks and handsome city hall, one of the most attractive buildings in the Southwest.

Nogales is advantageously located upon the international boundary. It is the logical center of trade of a considerable territory, and the port of entry, through which flows a large volume of exports and of great value. Santa Cruz county, of which Nogales is the seat, affords abundant pasturage to many thousands of cattle. Its fertile valleys are being rapidly settled; wonderful agricultural development is close at hand. The mines of Santa Cruz county are among the oldest and richest in the state, one of the most important factors contributing to the prosperity of the city.

Among the more notable additions to the industrial life of the city is the plant of the International Gas, Ice, Electric Light and Power company now approaching completion, the largest and best-equipped of its kind in this part of the country. It is being built by the well known firm of engineers, Cole, Ives and Davidson of New York city. The company is composed of some of the best known and brainiest business men of Nogales. Spiro Proto, president, is noted for his business acumen, and holds a high position in the commercial life of the city. Anton Proto, a wealthy merchant, is secretary. The board of directors is headed by Mrs. Theodora Marsh, of Geo. B. Marsh, Inc. Mrs. Marsh is a successful business woman, one of the officers of the Santa Cruz Valley Bank, and proprietress of the National hotel.

The building, an imposing structure of concrete and pressed brick, 70 by 160 feet, will be absolutely fireproof. It contains a large amount of window space. Twenty-six hundred and fifty-eight panes of glass will be required to fill the window frames. These frames are of metal, built into the walls. The roof is of concrete, supported on expanded metal, and covered with an asphalt surface.

The plant will be equipped with two Diesel oil-burning engines, manufactured by the McIntosh and Seymour corporation of New York. The engines will be 500 horsepower each, and will be connected to two General Electric company electric generators of 437 K. W. capacity each. A seven-panel switch board of marble will be installed as the control of these generators, and the various circuits leading to the different parts of the town and the surrounding country.

The ice machine will have a capacity of thirty tons per day. The ice end of the plant is divided into a freezing tank room, where 310 300-pound cans of water are frozen at a time, an ice storage room with a capacity of 500 tons, five separate rooms for cold storage purposes. The distribution system has been laid out to cover the entire town of Nogales, Arizona, as well as the town of Nogales, Sonora. It is the intention of the company to run power transmission lines down the Santa Cruz valley for operating pumps for irrigation and other service; also to the mining district of Patagonia and Washington camp.

Another vastly important construction rapidly approaching completion is the big bonded warehouse of the West Coast Warehouse company, built of brick, upon a substantial foundation, sixty-six feet wide and 326 feet long, with a floor space of over 300,000 feet. The warehouse company is made up of some of the leading business men of Nogales. Edward Titcomb, of the well known machinery house of Roy and Titcomb, Inc., is president; J. Santamoria, vice president; Bracey Curtis, president of the First National Bank of Nogales is secretary and treasurer; Wirt G. Bowman is general manager. Mr. Bowman is one of the best known men in Arizona and Sonora. He was for a number of years connected with the Southern Pacific of Mexico, serving in many important positions. The warehouse company expects to handle a goodly portion of the garbanzo crop from Mexico in transit to Spain. The warehouse will give employment to a number of men.

Various other business projects are in contemplation, all calculated to promote the prosperity of Nogales.
